Mentoring Program Yields Rewards for Mentors and Young Students

Program Celebrates 20 Years

To hear Paul Aburrow tell it, Rockville's mentoring program can be as worthwhile for the mentors as it is for the young people whose lives those mentors influence.

"It's tremendously rewarding," Aburrow said of the program he's been a part of for the past nine years. "You get a chance to help a young person and you actually get to see the effects of your efforts. You get to see their grades go up and you see they have more confidence and see them perform better in

The program, which celebrates its 20th year during the 2015-16 school year, is looking for high school students and adults to offer guidance, friendship and encouragement to elementary school students. No special skills are required.

The program, run by the city's Community Services Division, has expanded to its largest size in years, with 60 students across Twinbrook, Beall and Ritchie Park elementary schools and the Twinbrook Community Recreation Center. The time commitment is one hour a week from October through May. Student Service Learning credits are available to high school students age 16 and older.

IN BRIEF

Nominate a Good Neighbor for 2015 Awards

Rockville's annual Good Neighbor Award recognizes the ongoing efforts of Rockville residents who are making exceptional contributions to improve the quality of life in their neighborhoods, often without seeking or receiving recognition for their service.

Consider nominating family members, friends or neighbors who have performed a good deed or provided a service to their Rockville community. Adult or youth nominees must:

- Be a resident of the City of Rockville.
- Have made a significant contribution to their community during 2015.
- Not be an employee of the City of Rockville.

Learn more about the award and its 2014 recipients by visiting www.rockvillemd.gov/youtube and searching "Rockville Good Neighbor."

The deadline for nominations is Oct. 1. For more information, contact Hjarman Cordero at hcordero@rockvillemd.gov.

Last Chance to Go Solar with Rockville's Co-op

Monday, Sept. 7 is the last day to sign up for the neighborhood solar co-op organized by the Rockville Environment Commission. The co-op, which has more than 100 members, recently selected Rockville-based Standard Energy Solutions and Frederick-based Sustainable Energy Systems to install rooftop solar panels on co-op members' homes.

The installers were chosen from multiple submissions through a competitive bidding process by the co-op, which is receiving technical support from MD SUN.

MD SUN has helped co-op members better understand the process of going solar together and leveraging their group buying power.

Co-op members have no commitment to buy, but will have the option to purchase solar panels based on pricing negotiated by the group. Each homeowner signs a contract with the installer and receives the benefit of the group pricing, which is up to 20 percent off the cost.

Learn more at www.rockvillemd.gov/solarhomes.

Online Permits Now Available

Rockville's Inspection Services Division is now offering contractors and homeowners an easy online permit process to obtain simple building permits in the following areas:

- Plumbing.
- Mechanical.
- Electrical.
- Occupancy.

Simple permits are trade permits for sewer connection, water connection, water heater, electrical upgrades, heating and air conditioning or occupancy.

Applicants can apply online and print the permit from their home or office. Permits for mechanical contractors take an additional day to validate accounts.

Learn more at www.rockvillemd.gov/online permits or by calling 240-314-8240.

Register to Vote at Mobile Voter Registration Drive this Fall

Election Day is Tuesday, Nov. 3

Coming in October's "Rockville Reports:" The 2015 Voter Guide

The City of Rockville is preparing for Election Day, on Tuesday, Nov. 3, when voters will go to the polls to elect a mayor and four councilmembers.

The Rockville Human Rights Commission (HRC) is encouraging community members, including recent newcomers to the city, to get involved in the community and register to vote.

The commission will host a voter registration marathon on Saturday, Sept. 19. A decorated van will tour the city from 9 a.m.-6:30 p.m.

The van will spend about 90 minutes at each location, in the following order:

- The Rockville Farmers Market, at the corner of Route 28 and Monroe Street.
- Giant Food, 625 Hungerford Road.
- The Montrose Community Center, 451 Congressional Lane.
- Thomas Farm Community Center, 700

Fallsgrove Drive.

- Regal Row, near 199 E. Montgomery Ave.

Potential voters are asked to bring a current Maryland driver's license or identification card from the Motor Vehicle Administration. If neither is available, the last four digits of the potential voter's Social Security number will be used for this purpose only.

The voter registration drive is part of the HRC's goals of increasing voter turnout and community engagement.

Voters have a voice in issues such as property taxes and fees; upkeep of city parks, playgrounds and facilities; city services such as recycling and refuse collection and road repairs; neighborhood safety; growth and development and more.

Learn more about voter registration eligibility and the 2015 city election at www.rockvillemd.gov/election15. ❖

New Pay Structure to Attract and Keep Talented Employees with Rockville

Changes to Employee Pay Follow Consultant's Study

The Mayor and Council in July approved a new pay structure for city employees.

The approval follows a nearly six-month-long study of Rockville's compensation and job classification systems by a consultant. The study sought to ensure that the city is able to recruit and retain the best talent possible, and is positioned to respond to market changes now and into the future.

Employees are compensated retroactively at their new rates, beginning with the first full pay period of Fiscal Year 2016, which began July 1.

In addition to setting the new structure, the Mayor and Council approved a performance-based lump sum bonus, ranging from 0 to 2.5 percent, to be paid on the anniversary of the employees' start date. The compensation changes also include a 2 percent cost-of-living adjustment after salaries are adjusted to the new structure.

Compensation and classification studies are performed to review job descriptions for accuracy and legal compliance, to examine compensation and benefits offered by other local employers, and to maintain competitive and equitable pay.

For more information about the study and the new pay structure, find the July 20 Mayor and Council agenda at www.rockvillemd.gov/agendacenter. ❖

Mayor and Council Vote to Continue Participation in CCOC

Commission Provides Resources for Common Ownership Communities

Residents of common ownership communities, and the governing bodies of those communities, will continue to have access to an important resource for information, advice and dispute resolution, after the Mayor and Council voted July 20 to continue the city's participation in the Commission on Common Ownership Communities (CCOC).

Common ownership communities have shared common property within a residential development. Their governing bodies, such as a homeowner association's board of directors, adopt and enforce rules and assess dues for the ownership, maintenance and operations of common property.

Rockville has 57 common ownership communities, including 20 condominium communities, three that are a mix of condominiums and townhomes, 18 of solely town-homes, eight that are a mix of townhomes and single-family homes and eight communities of solely single-family homes.

The CCOC provides technical assistance, information and advice to association boards and residents about a variety of topics, such as conducting elections, adopting budgets and appropriately enforcing association bylaws. CCOC staff also helps to resolve disputes between association residents and association governing bodies through informal coordination, mediation and formal hearings.

Since the city began the relationship with the CCOC in January 2010, CCOC staff has helped Rockville residents and associations resolve disputes about home maintenance, excessive noise, deck construction and other topics.

Rockville Says Goodbye to Summer, But Not to Outdoor Swimming

Most Septembers, when the summer winds down, Rockville Swim and Fitness Center swimmers reluctantly head back to the indoor pool.

This year, they can linger a little longer outside in the 50-meter fitness pool. The center is extending its outdoor lap swimming season, weather permitting, through mid-October.

In addition, the center will offer some of its water fitness classes in the outdoor fitness pool through Oct. 2 (weather permitting). Find a schedule at www.rockvillemd.gov/guide. Register for a full session to pay a lower rate, or drop in for $7 per class. All other swim and fitness center classes begin the week of Aug. 31.

Work continues on the center's indoor south pool deck replacement and HVAC upgrades. To learn more, visit www.rockvillemd.gov/swimcenter. ✚

Aburrow found the program shortly after retiring from a career as a food broker. "I had coached some teams along the way in my years but I had not done anything like mentoring before," he said.

Mentors receive some training before they start and coaching and support along the way. Other than that, they simply need to "be willing to show up that hour a week," Aburrow said. Or two hours a week, in Aburrow's case. He has volunteered twice a week, at Beall and Ritchie Park, for the past five years.

"You don't have to be a teacher. You don't have to be a psychologist," he said. "All you really need is the desire to help a young person."
